

memo

Wednesday, March 3, 2004

To: thinking

From: un

Re: “. . . for there is no folly of the beasts of the earth which is not infinitely outdone by the madness of men.” —Herman Melville, Moby-Dick the updated Quintessence Sickle has an activation requirement of 325 Axe the madness of unthinking strange small statues were found in several towns who somehow inspires people to drag a ship over a mountain in order to bring opera to the jungles of Peru see a Cuban! But how? They are nowhere to be seen she is said to bewitch men and women and eventually cause their deaths into descent and prostitution she grew pale as well as she retreated into her shop and slid the door closed verily I say unto you God hath caused this dearth because here began the madness of men and the sin while he thought earnestly, frequently signing his forehead with the sign of the cross and praying, he decided that it was better to suffer from the ferocity of wild beasts, without any sin on their part, than from the madness of men who would lose their souls thanks for letting us know Ibn¹

¹ this memo created by typing “madness of men” into google and culling text from the first nine sites listed